Pregnant women breastfeed! Breastfeeding works for a ton of reasons and is different for all women. The current guidelines for breastfeeding are to exclusively breastfeed and continuing to the second or third birthday. Mother's milk is the best nutrition for a baby and they will get everything they need from mom! How To Breastfeed Here are the steps to help you get you and your babe on the road to breastfeeding success:

1. Start out right. Feeding at night is more difficult when you are first starting out and during the first few days. But that is when your little one's digestive system is working best. If you go back to work after maternity leave, your days will be more hectic and your baby may wake up at different times each day. Adjust your feed times accordingly.
3. Learn about engorgement. If you are having a lot of engorgement after each feeding your baby is eating a lot of your breast milk. Try to get your little one to feed more often and work on your nursing sessions.
4. Don't try to supplement with formula If you are struggling with your supply, don't try to supplement your milk with formula. Often women think that if their supply is not the best, then they should not be breast feeding but that isn
